SUMMARY OF DATASET

The report covers transportation-related financial activities of the federal, state, and local governments, as well as government enterprises (e.g., public transit agencies, toll highways, parking lots, air terminals, etc.) that finance most of their outlays by providing services to the public. The report focuses on the role of the government as a transportation infrastructure system provider and its financial activities about this function. The economic activities of the government as a user of the transportation system are excluded except when these activities are directly relevant to its role as a provider of the transportation infrastructure. The following broad categories of data are provided in this report: Federal revenues and expenditures by mode and program for FY 1985-2003. Federal grants to state and local governments by mode for FY 1985-2002. Federal budget authority and obligations by mode and program for FY 1985-2003. State government revenues and expenditures by mode for the fifty states for FY 1985- 2002. Local government revenues and expenditures by mode for the fifty states and the District of Columbia for FY 1985-2001.

NOTES:

Numbers may not add to totals due to rounding.

Numbers in parenthesis are negative values. The negative expenditure values are a result of offsetting collections. Offsetting collections are federal receipts from the public resulting from business-type activities, or transfers from other federal accounts. Such receipts are deducted from gross outlays of a receiving program in the budget of the U.S. Government, instead of combining them with federal receipts. Thus, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) reports negative expenditures for some federal programs whenever offsetting collections exceed their eventual budget. This should be taken into consideration when examining total expenditures for specific federal programs.

United States transferred ownership of the Panama Canal Commission on December 31, 1999. FY 2000 expenses cover first quarter operations and FY 2001 expenses are for the settlement of remaining accident and contract claims.

Numbers in parenthesis are negative values. The negative expenditure values are a result of offsetting collections. Offsetting collections are federal receipts from the public resulting from business-type activities, or transfers from other federal accounts. Such receipts are deducted from gross outlays of a receiving program in the budget of the U.S. Government, instead of combining them with federal receipts. Thus, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) reports negative expenditures for some federal programs whenever offsetting collections exceed their eventual budget. This should be taken into consideration when examining total expenditures for specific federal programs.

The data in this table are presented in chained 2000 dollars, while the data in the previous report were provided in chained 1996 dollars. Moreover, some of the numbers in this table may be different from those in the earlier report, because of revisions made to the historical data series.

G. Data Filenames (XLS):

BTS_GTFS_2003_Table_XLS

Short description:

This folder contains the 70 XLS files, as described under F. Data Filenames (CSV). They are identical, except that these files are preserved in the file format XLS, which is native to Excel, and can be opened by some other open spreadsheet software.

H. Data Filenames (HTML):

BTS_GTFS_2003_HTML

Short description:

This folder contains 83 HTML files. This folder contains 70 identical files as described under F. Data Filenames (CSV), except that these files are preserved in the file format HTML. HTML is the standard markup language for documents designed to be displayed in a web browser. The remaining files represent textual segments from Government Transportation Financial Statistics 2003 report preserved as HTML files.

List of HTML Files

1 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_adjustment_for_inflation.html

Short description:

The file describes Revisions and corrections to previously published data have been made in most cases. For example, the base year for chained dollars data for this report is 1996, whereas the earlier version was presented in chained 1992 dollars.

2 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_appendix_2_Glossary_and_List_of_Acronyms.html

Short description:

The file describes terminology and definitions used in the Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 1991 and more fully described in A Glossary of Terms Used in the Federal Budget Process, January 1993. Other terminology and definitions are from the U.S. Bureau of the Census, Government Finances, and from the Bureau of Economic Analysis, Conceptual Basis for Chain-Type Measures. The terminology and definitions are summarized here along with a discussion of additional measures and concepts used in this report. The GTFS 2003 report defines Appendix 1 as the data tables.

3 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_capital_expenditures.html

Short description:

The file defines capital expenditures at the federal, state and local government level with respect to transportation mode. A capital expenditure is any expenditure that adds to the productive capacity of the economy.

3 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_change.html

Short description:

The file describes the changes in the database since the last edition (GTFS 2001), informing the user on revisions to the historical data in efforts to improve the accuracy of the data. The data on federal government transportation finance are primarily obtained from the Public Budget Database of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). The data in this report reflects the changes made to the OMB since the last update to Government Transportation Financial Statistics.

4 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_data_sources.html

Short description:

The file describes the source that generated the data used to produce the tables within the report, along with a description of chained-dollar estimates.

5 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_definitions_and_data_coverage.html

Short description:

The file provides definitions of Revenues and Expenditures along with describing the data coverage of the revenues and expenditures of the varying transportation modes: Highway, rail, air, water, pipeline, and general support.

6 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_discussion_trust_fund.html

Short description:

The file lists the five transportation-related federal trust funds (i.e., Highway Trust Fund (HTF), Airport and Airways Trust Fund (AATF), Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund (HMTF), Inland Waterways Trust Fund (IWATF), and Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund (OSLTF)) and provides brief description of each. Describing where the trust-fund collections originate from and where the interest earned from the funds are allocated towards to.

7 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_endnotes.html

Short description:

The file describes some final remarks that may be of interest. Topics range from the year when conrail was privatized and an amendment of section 901 of the Merchant Marine Act to increase from 50 to 75 percent the amount of agricultural commodities under specified programs that must be carried on U.S.-flag vessels.

8 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_federal_budget_and_obligations.html

Short description:

The file lists the major transportation modes (i.e., highway, transit, rail, air, water, pipeline, and general support) and describes the authority provided under law to enter into obligations. These obligations are agreements that result in immediate or future outlays of government funds. Obligations show government commitment to future transportation outlays but do not indicate when the funds will actually be disbursed or the amounts obligated will be spent.

9 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_introduction.html

Short description:

The file describes the value transportation as an industry provides for the United States of America from the U.S. economy, providing jobs and income and supporting economic activity. The introduction proceeds to present the governmental hierarchy (i.e., federal, state, and local) and the allocation of total activity and funds dispersed between these three levels of government.

10 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_limitations_of_data.html

Short description:

The file contains a list describing the major limitations of the database that users should take into consideration

11 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_references.html

Short description:

The file provides a list of resource, in detail, used throughout the report to produce the data and results.

13 Filename:

BTS_GTFS_2003_scope.html

Short description:

The file provides a short list of the range the data applies toward as well as providing a brief description of the limitation of the data.
