

Data generated by simulations, predictive models, or computational analyses. These datasets represent derived outputs from traffic, infrastructure, or environmental models and may require supporting documentation or code for reproducibility.