

Structured datasets from controlled experiments or standardized tests, typically presented in tables or spreadsheets. These data are numeric or categorical and often include repeated trials, benchmark results, and laboratory measurements with accompanying metadata.